Gout

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

What is gout? Gout is a disease that causes severe joint pain and stiffness. Acute gout pain starts suddenly, gets worse quickly, and stops on its own. Acute gout can become chronic and cause permanent damage to your joints.

What causes gout? Gout develops when uric acid builds up in your joints. Uric acid is made when your body breaks down purines. Purines are found in some medicines and foods. Your body gets rid of most uric acid through your urine. When your body cannot get rid of enough uric acid, it can build up and form crystals in your joints. The crystals cause your joints to become swollen and painful. This is called a gout attack.

What increases my risk for gout? You may have been born with a decreased ability to break down and get rid of purines. Your body's ability to break down purines may be very slow. Because of this, uric acid can build up and increase your risk of gout. Any of the following can also increase your risk:
